About the Presentation:

Inclusion is often used as an ideological approach to ensuring that children have equal access within early childhood programs. The practice of inclusion brings with it many challenges. Firstly, inclusion requires programs to come to an agreement about what matters and how they will ensure they bring into practice their philosophy relating to inclusion. Secondly, and most importantly, inclusion requires educators to unpack their own thinking and ultimately biases so to ensure that the politics of inclusion do not lead to discriminatory practices within curriculum. This presentation will unpack the multiple ways of understanding inclusion and exclusion, whilst also inspiring educators to ensure that the politics of inclusion are more of a reality than a dream.

About the Presenter:

Anthony has worked as an educator, innovator and advocate with a broad range of government and private organisations. His skills and expertise has seen him work across Australia and overseas. He is in demand as a presenter, facilitator and public speaker and has qualifications in Education, Sociology and Social Policy. Anthony has an exceptional capacity to challenge organisations and people and have them reflect on how their approaches to communication, leadership, diversity, values, relationships and workplace culture affect their services, businesses and ultimately the community.

Anthony's achievements have been publicly recognised by his peers and the broader community and he has been awarded the:

- Young Manager of the Year Award
- The Early Childhood Australia Inaugural Advocate of the Year Award.
